Daystar Parents Attend Classes With Students »

When was the last time you had to add or subtract fractions? When was the last time you had recess after lunch? The Daystar Christian School parents and church members of the Pueblo First Church had these experiences and more on April 6 as part of Daystar's Parent's Day.

"It was so much fun & surely increased my understanding of how hard the kids & Mrs. Velbis & Miss Lauren work," exclaimed Linda Garcia, home and school leader.

The parents and church members were invited to spend the whole school day with the students, taking all of their classes with them. The parents also had a chance to share their careers and the important connections and applicability to what the students are learning now.

"Taking your time and doing your best. These are important characteristics for whatever occupation you will be doing. I always remember to do everything for the glory of God and that helps me remember to always do my best," shared Calvin Bennett, school board chairman and welder by trade.

"It was such a pleasure having our parents and church members with us for the day. The students were excited to share what they are learning. We also had the parents and students set goals together, which I think is very important for future success," stated Principal Michelle Velbis. "Our school is so blessed to have parents and church members that support us with love, prayers and resources."

Parent's Day followed home visits, which also help to strengthen the parent-child-teacher connections and

Miracles and Blessings Showered on Grand Junction Church »

Led by Grand Junction Church building committee chairperson Bernie Hartnell, church members held a praise session Friday evening, March 31, thanking God for His blessings and the miracles surrounding the relocation of their church, school, and daycare facilities. He asked for continued discernment and guidance as they move toward April 30 when Maranatha volunteers arrive to begin building.

Key members recounted blessings and miracles experienced during the process of finding and buying land, marvelling at the way events unfolded:

Realtor Dan Watson told about locating this beautiful 10-acre site which wasn't on the market. A letter to the owners who had resisted selling to developers for 20 years, revealed that they were happy to sell to the Grand Junction Church and even reduced their asking price by $200,000.

Negotiators for Colorado Mesa University (CMU) quickly agreed to the appraised value of $4.1 million even though their appraisal was $400,000 less.

Dan Watson, full-time local realtor, volunteered his time, sometimes 40 hours a week, on this project for many months--a huge blessing. The sale of the property and the purchase of the new property came together at the same time--another huge blessing.

CMU will allow Maranatha volunteers to park their RVs in the parking lot of the old campus during the six weeks they will be working on the new site as well as use the restrooms and classrooms.

Story Guidelines: We want to share your news! »

News Nuggets is your publication. We strive to provide news and information expressing our church life. Every church, every family, every individual has a story to tell. We are inviting pastors and secretaries of churches and institutions within the Rocky Mountain Conference to share with us relevant information -- about developments, issues, notable events, as well as experiences of church members.

Please email your story to nuggets@rmcsda.org so we can share how God is working through His people in your territory. When submitting your story, please include the following: the Ws (who, what, where, when, why...also how), a personal quote, a photo and the name of the photographer.

Please consider time constraints and always send in fresh new stories instead of outdated ones. Submission deadlines are Wednesdays by noon.

CMU asked for just a $25,000 reduction in their price after asbestos was found in the school and church during the required study even though the estimated cost for its removal was $200,000.

CMU agreed to extend the occupancy of the present school to October 31.

Diseased trees were removed by Justin Perkins and his “All About Trees” crew for half the cost of the next lowest bid which did not include hauling off and stump grinding.

Accomplished stone mason and church member David Priest volunteered to do the extensive stone work on the new buildings, saving labor costs.

Retired contractor and church member Wes Harlin made arrangements with Whitewater Sand and Gravel to provide more than a 25 percent deduction in material costs.

Topsoil removal for the concrete slab revealed tree roots which could cause the concrete to settle and crack. The remedy required excavation of 3-4 feet of ground and backfilling with structural rock. Continued excavation following a prayer gathering at the site showed that less than 10 percent of the remaining area had roots and required only 2 feet of over-excavation.

The Grand Junction City Planning and Building Departments gave partial approval to begin earthwork and concrete placement before final plan approval. Many city officials are believers and want to facilitate the project.

“As we look up beyond our limited vision, not focused on our circumstances, but focused on God, He continues to provide the help we need,” says church member Ron Johnson.

Carrots, Watermelon and a Grant Proposal at Mile High Academy »

It all started with some seeds and a dream. Mile High Academy first graders took on gardening as their real-world learning project this year. But not just any garden--they wanted garden boxes and a composter and their own space for it all.

These things cost money and take time, so the first graders came up with a plan. First, they wrote a grant proposal. That's right, first graders wrote out grant proposals asking for money to build their dream.

After presenting their proposals to family, friends, and invited guests, the money for the project began coming in, enough for the composter and the garden boxes, too.

Then the enthusiastic group took to building, mapping, and planting seedlings. What an ambitious project. However, the energy and joy with which these students took to it is inspiring.

The best part is, in the fall, they and the new first grade class, will get to reap the fruits of their labors. Together, they will be harvesting their crop. Real-world learning brings things to life in the classroom. For these students, that means big smiles and garden beds full of beans, carrots, watermelon, and some surprises.

Journey to the Cross tours will begin in the church with orientation, but take place in the gym which has been set up as a first-century Jerusalem street, complete with shops, the high priest, Pontius Pilate, shoppers, beggars, and even soldiers on horseback. Supported by several area Adventist churches, it will all be interactive. After a dramatic presentation of the crucifixion and resurrection, guests will be invited to continue to the Academy cafeteria where they can enjoy refreshments and a display of first-century Roman military artifacts, coins, and other items.
