Adrenaline and Gratitude Flow During Opening Sabbath at Castle Rock Church Plant

For Pastor Godfrey Miranda, opening Sabbath at Castle Rock Church plant was filled with adrenaline and pressure, but also with “gratitude for the very vocal and tangible support from the surrounding church community.”

Meeting in the fourth-floor lobby of Castle Rock Adventist Hospital, the 80-plus attendees sometimes had to wait for additional chairs, contributing to the general excitement of the day.

Area pastors from Franktown, Newday, Littleton, Denver South, and LifeSource churches sent video greetings to the new plant that were played during the service and which received warm applause. “This is something that the whole community and God desires to see happen,” Miranda expressed.

Among the special touches of the day, according to Miranda, were having RMC president Ed Barnett and vice-president Eric Nelson present to give perspective on the background work that took place over the past several years leading up to opening Sabbath.

"What a high Sabbath we had on the opening day of Castle Rock's church plant. It was thrilling to have so many people in attendance and heartwarming to see at least 20 children," said President Barnett.
According to Barnett, Rocky Mountain Conference has a church planting committee that “strategically looks at the best places to plant a church.” They’ve recently voted to start a downtown church plant which should be in place when Shawn Boonstra presents the 2018 evangelistic series in Denver.

Miranda’s message, titled “Starting Point” explored the idea that the church doesn’t have a starting point with any individual, but begins when its members “behold the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world” (John 1:29). “That’s the only starting point for the church; that’s where the world needs to be brought and what they need to see,” he explained.

Evidences of God at work were seen by Miranda through new families attending in search of a home church whom he had never before met, along with CONNECT cards turned in with requests for prayer or in search of a small group where they could volunteer.

At the end of the service, each family received a gift bag with several small gifts including a Steps to Christ and a bag of microwavable popcorn containing the message, “So glad you popped in today!” Host families invited everyone in attendance to their homes for lunch and quality fellowship.

“It’s an amazing feeling to see dreams and plans actually become reality,” Miranda expressed, “and realize only God could do that.”

Loveland Pathfinders Hold Parent Appreciation Event   » The Cougars Pathfinder Club of Loveland held their first Parent Appreciation Night April 19 with more than 40 Pathfinders, their families, friends, and staff members in attendance. They gathered in the HMS Richards school gym where Esequias Perea, youth pastor for Campion Church, opened the evening with prayer.

Skits related to their curriculum were presented by the Pathfinders who also provided a showcase of talents ranging from a saxophone jazz piece, guitar solo, violin, piano, and a Bible reading. Parents watched the performances while enjoying a meal provided by Pathfinders. The evening gave the kids an opportunity to let their parents know how important and vital they are to the success of the club.
