Boulder Church Hosts Breakfast Station For Bike To Work Day

» Boulder Adventist Church hosted a Bike to Work breakfast station for the first time at its site in Boulder's historic Mapleton Hill District on Wednesday, June 28. While the church is located in a residential neighborhood and not as heavily trafficked as the commercial hub of the city, the church felt some cyclists—especially those originating on Mapleton Hill or in Sunshine Canyon—might appreciate a breakfast station off the beaten path.

Nearly sixty cyclists enjoyed overnight oats with chia seeds, pumpkin seeds, slivered almonds and chopped dates, topped with Greek yogurt, sliced bananas, and blueberries. Portions in takeaway containers featuring the church logo were available for those in a hurry who wanted to “grab and go,” although most chose to stop and eat before continuing on their journeys. The church also served breakfast to numerous dog walkers, hikers, and joggers, as well as local neighbors who stopped by to visit. Most volunteers, including children, arrived at the church at 5:30 a.m. to prepare to start serving at 6:30 a.m.

"We didn't really know what to expect," says Becky De Oliveira who served as station coordinator. "Attendance was great, people loved the food, and we really enjoyed serving our community in this way. We'll definitely do it again next year!"

Bike to Work Day is the main event during the annual Walk and Bike Month in June and draws thousands of participants. Boulder alone had more than 60 breakfast stations offered by local businesses and organizations.

Minnesota Conference Trust Director and Property Manager position, he is well prepared to manage the many facets of this demanding work.

Doug's wife, Susan, to whom he's been married for 35 years, is working part-time for Treasury, managing accounts payable.

Having been here for several weeks, Doug admits that he has the bigger challenge. "The staff in the department know the laws of these states, they know the procedures of this conference and they know the people here, so they are doing fine. I need to learn all those things which, in many cases, are different than in the Minnesota Conference."

RMC Trust Services has the highest level of certification in the denomination and Doug plans "to keep that going." There will, of course, be "changes over time because that happens even when there are no changes in personnel," Doug explains. "We want to make sure those changes improve service for our Trustors," he concludes.

On a personal level, Doug recently completed a 12-year project restoring a 1973 VW Beetle, which is up for sale (call him for price). Now, he spends his spare time looking for a house and taking his dog, Tess, a border collie, on long walks.

Doug and Susan have a daughter, the youth pastor at the Madison Campus Church in Nashville and a son, a graphic designer in Wisconsin near Green Bay Junior Academy where their daughter-in-law teaches.

"Their close relationship with the Lord was evident in each of their lives," observed church member Gayla Shutt. "We pray special blessings on each of the Wild Fire team -- Kendrick McGrew, Abby Logan, Ricky Crews, Kayla Gonzalez, Jessica Davis, Xander Assa, and Austin Rotinsulu -- as they witness in other areas of Colorado and Wyoming."

Student LE Program Sees Record Day of Sales

Â» After three weeks spent canvassing in Fort Collins, Colorado, student literature evangelists packed their vans and headed for Casper, Wyoming. The very first day in Casper proved to each student that God's blessing is clearly on the literature evangelism program. In total, 455 books were left with the people of Casper in a mere six hours of knocking on doors and more than half were the Desire of Ages and The Great Controversy, .

The group of 19 students brought in more than $5,000, a total far surpassing any daily amount reached in the entire 27 years of the program's existence. "Do your best, God will do the rest, and you will be blessed," LE leader Joe Martin says.

Reflecting on the first half of the summer LE program, all thanks and glory are given to God alone for working through students who are willing to serve Him this summer to reach people.
