COMMENTARY

Connecting 'some' dots » October is a significant month in the history of Christianity and Adventism. Five hundred years ago, Martin Luther posted his “95 Theses” on a door in Wittenburg with the intention of drawing his church closer to the heart of God. This event is also known as the beginning of the Protestant Reformation.

In October 1844, many “Advent” believers accepted that Jesus would appear. They believed it so strongly, they were willing to put their lives on hold to pursue Christ and win the world for Jesus. They were not concerned with how people perceived them; they were “all in.”

As I consider these two events and the hearts of those who set out to follow God’s prompting, I am struck with the contrast of the issues and conversations in our church today: worship styles, women's ordination, tithe distribution and the administrative structure of our church.

There seems to be a strange void in these topics. Where is the discussion of reaching our communities for Christ? Where do we talk about revival and when will we start praying for our churches, communities, and our families, seeking to be drawn closer to Jesus? Is it possible we have been too easily drawn away and have lost sight of the real issue?

Some may say we just need reformation, others might mention the need to be more relevant, and still others believe our foundational values need protection.

I would say, yes, yes and yes!

Yes, we need to protect the values we were founded on. It seems to me we were and still are an advent church, with a clear message that Jesus is coming soon. He invites us to draw near to Him as He draws near to us.

Yes, we must become more relevant to the world we are trying to convey this message to. Without relevance, we have no voice!

And yes, we need reformation. Paul says it like this: “Be ye transformed by the renewing of your minds.” We need to “reform” the way we think, the way we approach this calling we have been given to go into all the world. Somehow we have become just like the world. We have lost the fervor that compelled the movement in 1844 and have become more interested in being part of the world and its pursuits, rather than calling people out of it.

Jesus is coming and no matter how often we have heard it, or how old the message may be, it is still true. We must plead with God to reignite the fire, to fan the flame, to revive us as a church. Psalms 85:6 "Will You not revive us again, That Your people may rejoice in You?"

Lord, we need renewed expectation! Help us to live as if we too believe Jesus is coming soon.

Daystar Christian School Holds Parent Involvement in Education Night »

Did you know that this is the first generation that is not expected to outlive the previous generation? This is a sobering statistic that is connected to the current epidemic of obesity. According to the Partnership for a Healthier America, "Many weight-related health issues can turn into chronic conditions (such as diabetes and heart disease) as children grow older and dramatically cut short their life expectancy."

Daystar Christian School wants to help change this future for its students. By becoming an active school (incorporating 60 minutes into the school day) and by educating the students and parents on the importance of physical activity, Daystar believes it is making a difference.

Thursday, October 12, Daystar hosted a PIE (Parent Involvement in Education) Night that had an emphasis on physical activity. Many professionals from the area came to help out and share their expertise. The main speaker for the evening was former Denver Bronco player Antwon Burton. Burton encouraged his audience by telling them that physical activity got him to the NFL. When he was in 7th grade, he started walking to a gym at 6:00 a.m. before school so he could work out. That drive and determination eventually let “Sports taught me all the things that you need to be successful in life – teamwork, determination, perseverance, and hard work,” said Burton. “Interesting, but being in the NFL was never my goal. My goal was just to work hard at whatever I did in life.”

“I was thankful that Mr. Burton was willing to talk to us of his past. He is a good role model,” said Audra Bennett, 7th grader.

The evening also had the CSU Pueblo Athletic Department leading out in physical activities, and other local teachers that had Minute To Win It games and Go Noodle activities.

Fourth grader, Alexis Richardson commented, “It was fun to play the games and to see how we could move our bodies. I liked learning how to do the exercises.”

“I understand the importance of moving for children and the connection between learning and better health – they go hand in hand,” said Principal, Michelle Velbis. “The statistics show that when children are more active, they do better academically and physically. Whenever we can encourage students and their parents to do activities together it is an even bigger win for everyone.”

President Visits RMC Schools » The first week of October, RMC President Ed Barnett took a three-day journey to visit the Rocky Mountain Conference schools. His desire to personally visit every school and talk with the students and teachers was partially fulfilled as he and vice president for Education, Lonnie Hetterle, spent three days and covered more than 1100 miles while visiting schools on the western slope, in southern Colorado and in northern New Mexico. They were also able to visit La Vida Mission south of Farmington, New Mexico.

Leaving early on a Tuesday morning, Barneet and Hetterle were able to visit our schools at Glenwood Springs, Grand Junction, and Delta before driving spending the night in Cortez. The second day out, they visited the schools in Cortez, La Vida Mission, Farmington, and Durango. Their last day began in Alamosa and continued across the mountain in Pueblo, Canon City, and Colorado Springs before finally heading home to Denver.

At each school Barnett was able to share a wonderful story about a “flying kitty” and Hetterle did some “new math” that made the students (and even a few teachers) really think. *“It was so encouraging to see the dedication of the teachers and experience the happy and safe environment for the students. said Barnett.

“We are still working on syncing our calendars so we can visit our schools in Northern Colorado and Wyoming in the near future”, said Hetterle. He went on to say what a pleasure it was to see the president of the conference bonding with the children and staff of our schools. Their visits were not only enjoyed by the president, but the students and staff seemed to have fun as they visited on a more personal basis.

Principal May Oles reported, “It was so nice to have the president of the conference on our campus and for him to be able to interact with our students and our staff. It meant a lot that he would take the time to show he really cares about Adventist education in our conference.”

Boulder Church Men Meet for a Retreat »

Boulder Church held its inaugural men’s retreat on Saturday night, October 14, at a large private cabin near the Fourth of July trailhead outside Nederland, Colorado. The retreat was attended by 41 men—many of them regular and longstanding members of the church. Others included people new to the church, those from surrounding churches, and neighbors from the local Mapleton Hill community.

After the logistical challenge of getting all the men to the somewhat remote site—through carpooling and ferrying people in Rubicons up the last portion of the road—the men enjoyed a Chipotle dinner. Worship leaders Elia King and Nick Zork—who flew in for the event from New York City where he serves at the Church of the Advent Hope—led the group in singing both spiritual and folk songs, including one by the recently deceased artist Tom Petty.

Pastor Japhet De Oliveira, along with Don Brown and Russell Lambert, shared reflections challenging the men to enter into a deeper and more authentic walk of life by building community with each other. Both Don and Russell served in the Vietnam War and used this experience to provide a framework for some powerful life lessons. Russell pointed out that simply understanding someone else's pain provides the strength for them to live. Don called the men to face up to their problems, promising that they will be stronger as a result. Pastor Japhet shared stories of men who have shaped his life by investing in him and urged the men to hold each other accountable.

This men's ministry was created and led by Dr. Bryan Wernick, Dr. Tom Eickmann, and Pastor Japhet De Oliveira. Bryan was proud that the retreat "provided initial steps to improving a close support group of brothers in Christ, dedicated to living life better," noting that he "was encouraged to see a large number of men from inside and outside of the local church who were all passionate about forming a better community." Tom agreed, saying, "The retreat was a great opportunity to connect with men in our church and community."

Boulder Church is passionate about creating links between church and the wider community. For more information about upcoming men's events at Boulder Church, contact Pastor Japhet (japhet@boulder.church).

Triple the Fun at Kuda Vana Children's Home »

When you're a triplet and your mother suggests going to Africa for six months to live at an orphanage called Kuda Vana and care for the children, what do you do? If you're Gabi, Elli and Tori Hernandez, 13, daughters of Pastor Dany and Lori Hernandez of LifeSource Fellowship, you jump at the opportunity.

Even their mother's warnings about the dirt and bugs they would encounter in Zimbabwe didn't dissuade them. When they had to downgrade their living situation by moving to a smaller home and cutting out extra spending to save money for the trip, the girls never lost their enthusiasm. They were gung-ho all the way!

After long, tiresome hours on the plane from Denver to Zimbabwe with stops in Washington, D.C. and Ethiopia, Gabi, Elli, Tori and Lori arrived in the middle of the night in temperatures exceeding 100 degrees. It was "dark and confusing" as they made their way from the airport to the orphanage, but someone had left a light on in the volunteer flat and as soon as they figured out where they would be sleeping, they fell into bed and slept an exhausted sleep.

Kuda Vana was founded in 2006 by retired church secretary Paula Leen. Known as Kuda Vana Partnership (formerly Murwira Children's Home), the home came into being after Paula saw the hopelessness of some of the 1.3 million orphaned children in Zimbabwe. Many others have stepped in to help since its beginning.

When it became evident that the water supply at the Murwira Children's Home wouldn't be able to support its operations, nor the agriculture that kept it self-sustaining, the campus was moved to a new site next to a permanent water source. Generous donors made building individual group homes possible for as many as 50 infants and children to live in family units with mamas and aunties rather than the dormitory-style rooms they were used to.

The individual homes that now house the "families" of children at Kuda Vana form a circle. It was at the center of this circle that the community gathered the next morning to meet and welcome these new people. The youngest children were still sleeping, but the Hernandez girls went out to meet the older kids who sang songs in greeting.

It wasn't long before the triplets had settled into a routine. Each day, they would study the Bible with their mother and two of the older boys and then spend two hours completing their own schooling while the older kids were away at school.

Toward the beginning of their stay, they visited the old Murwira Children's Home site which, according to Tori, was "very dirty and more dorm style," but made Gabi wish she "could [have seen] it when all the kids were there."

Like children everywhere, the Kuda Vana kids created their own games and their own toys, fashioning cars out of whatever materials were at hand. They often played soccer on the playground near their homes, where the girls would join them.

During their stay, Gabi formed a special bond with Trish, an extremely shy 2 ½ year-old; Tori, with Joy Lee, an also shy 3 ½ year-old; and Elli, with Kyle, a 2 ½ year-old who was "all over the place." All three youngsters "opened up [as they grew accustomed to being there] and were a lot more crazy, and acted more like kids," the girls said, laughing.

Gabi, Tori, and Ellie didn't come through this unusual experience unscathed. Each changed in her own way. Gabi watched as scared children arrived at Kuda Vana and gradually grew into children secure enough to play and to be children. She began to "understand what other people are going through." Ellie hadn't realized that "people live a whole lot differently than she and have a whole lot less." Tori said it "made her look at life in a new way." These kids have "no parents, no anything, and the home completely changes them." She realized "what she has compared to others."

As the girls move toward maturity and ponder their futures, their experiences at Kuda Vana will, most likely, play heavily on decisions they make. To the question, "Do you think your experience at Kuda Vana might influence your career decisions?", Tori responded, "Definitely." Elli, who wants to be an "author or musician of some sort" believes it's possible that her time spent in Zimbabwe will affect her career choice. Gabi thinks about doing interior design or "something that would involve helping the kids at Kuda Vana."

Their advice to other teenagers considering a mission trip: Elli: "Do it! You won't regret it. It's amazing and completely life changing."

Tori: "Just try it! It's really fun and it's so worth it!"

Gabi: "Don't be scared. It's much more fun than you think."

The Voice of Prophecy's "A Pale Horse Rides" Series Begins Next Week »

More than 700 churches across North America are partnering with the Voice of Prophecy to present A PALE HORSE RIDES, which begins Friday of next week. This gripping follow-up to last year's award-winning SHADOW EMPIRE series will walk in the footsteps of an intriguing group of ancient barbarians who paved the way for Martin Luther and the Protestant Reformation. In addition, stories from the 1,200 years that led up to the Reformation will explore the topic of Christianity's future. Shawn Boonstra traveled to Ireland, Scotland, Germany and Italy to make history come alive for this series, and each local pastor will play a pivotal role in the three presentations. It all begins Oct. 27, and you'll want to bring a friend!

In Wyoming, it will be available in Buffalo and Casper. Colorado locations include Aurora, Brighton, Castle Rock, Cedaredge, Denver, Dove Creek, Durango, Fort Collins, Fort Lupton, Fort Morgan, Golden, Grand Junction, Greeley, Leadville, Littleton, Loveland, Monte Vista, Northglenn, Pueblo, Steamboat Springs and Sterling. We will continue to encourage news sharing from our churches, institutions, and individual church members.

In order to make our eNewsletter accommodate an increased volume of announcements, our editorial work proposes to present information in a more efficient approach, ensuring that all timely promotions and announcements be included in a weekly, Friday release of NewsNuggets. Submission deadline for stories, news, and announcements is at noon on every Wednesday. Please send all your submissions to nuggets@rmcsda.org.

Thank you for your contribution, but also comments, as NewsNuggets continues to serve the church in an efficient and effective way.

We are inviting all correspondents and contributors to follow a general Adventist News Network Style Guide, including glossary. For guidelines, see: <http://news.adventist.org/styleguide/>
